Andrew Hill, of Amherst Island, died early Monday morning, aged ninety-two years. For the past four years he has been confined to his bed through weakness. His passing was like a quiet sleep. In 1837, he took part in the battle of the Windmill at Prescott. Mr. Hill had the honor in 1838 of firing the salute at Fort Henry in honor of the coronation of Queen Victoria. After sailing on vessels on the Bay of Quinte for several years, Mr. Hill settled on a farm on Amherst Island, and for the past sixty years resided there. A VETERAN AND PIONEER GONE.

Early on Monday morning, June 20, Mr. Andrew Hill died at his home on the South shore of Amherst Island in his 93rd year. Three years ago Mr. Hill's health began to fail, but until that time he was a strong active man able to go and visit his daughters and enjoy a day's fishing of which he was very fond. Mr. Hill was a native of the County Tyrone, Ireland, from which place he came to Kingston 70 years ago. He began life in Canada as a sailor on the steamers Great Britain and The Sir James Kemp, then sailing between Prescott and Toronto.

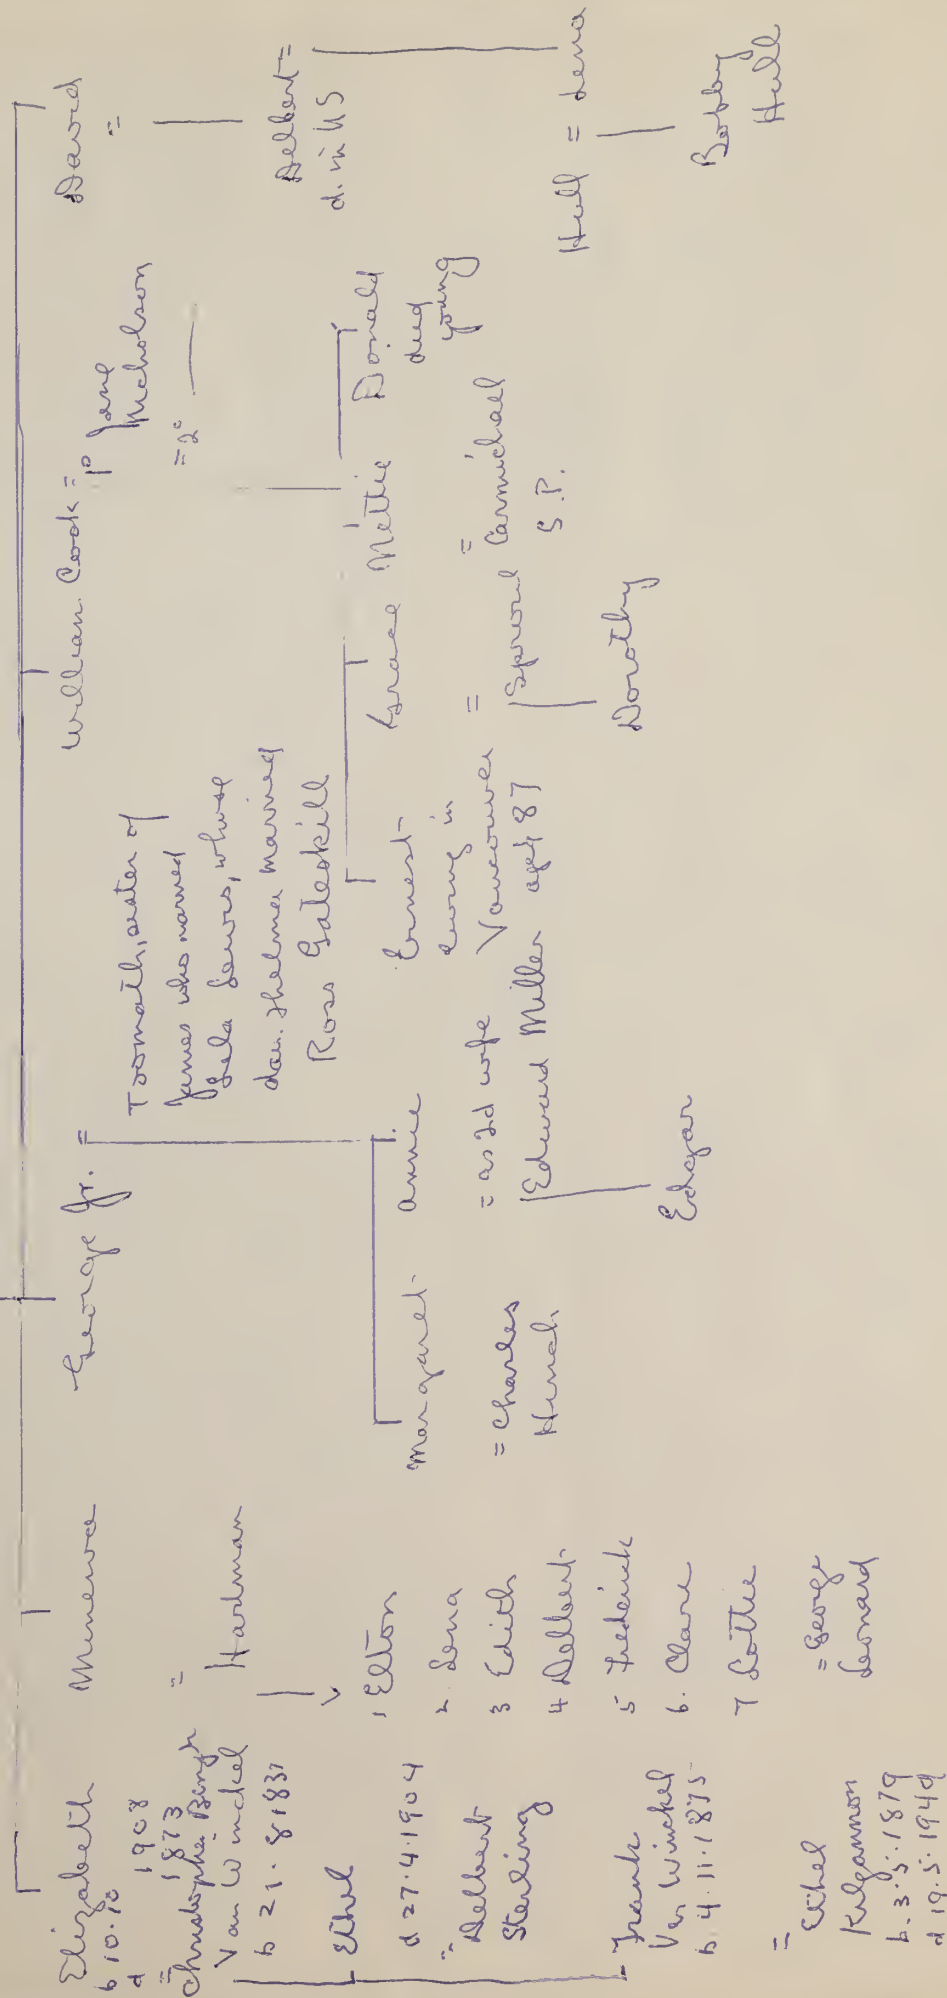

In 1838 Mr. Hill married Miss Jane Draffin, formerly of the County Fermanagh, Ireland, but those being unsettled times in Canada, he offered his services to his country and entered the Royal Navy. He served on board the Niagara, commanded by Captain Sandom. He was present at the battle of the Wind Mill, and after seven years service on board ship and in the dock-yard was honorably discharged. In 1844 he came with his wife and family and settled on a farm on the north shore of Amherst Island where he lived for 20 years. He then bought the farm on the south shore where he has lived for forty years enjoying the confidence and esteem of his neighbors and friends. His wife died many years ago. They had a large family, three sons and ten daughters. Six daughters and one son survive their father, Mrs. Wm. Andrews of New York; Mrs. Hugh Finnigan of Pittsburgh; Mrs. Wm. Hastings of Kingston; Mrs. A. McCaugherty of Bath; Mrs. D. Finnigan of Amherst Island; Miss Margaret and Thomas who live on the homestead.

Mr. Hill had a good memory and it was very interesting to hear him tell of the stirring times and events of his early life. He was a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church and until his health failed was a regular and devout worshipper. His end was peaceful and he died firm in the Christian's faith and hope. The funeral services were conducted by his pastor, the Rev. James Cumberland. His remains were followed to the grave by the members of his family and a large number of people. Mr. Hill was the last of the old settlers on the eastern end of Amherst Island.
